Mark G. Montiel, Jr. learned the art of negotiation and conflict resolution at a young age from his father, a well-renowned trial attorney and former Court of Criminal Appeals Judge. Mark's peers and clients often describe him as straightforward, big-picture-oriented, and relentless, with a fabulous sense of humor.

Mark's practice focuses primarily on the litigation of various matters, including Construction, Labor and Employment, Business Defamation, Insurance, Worker's Compensation, LHWCA, and Trucking and Transportation. In addition, Mark brings a unique perspective to his insurance practice, having had the opportunity to represent both insurers and claimants.

COMMENTARY ANGLES

Mark has been dealing with hurricanes in the Gulf South his entire life. He has recovered millions of dollars for clients related to recent hurricanes, Laura, Delta, and Ida. He helps and serves families and businesses in his community through his hurricane recovery legal services. Mark has worked in hurricane litigation since 2012 after Hurricane Isaac hit Louisiana. As an insurance claim attorney, he can provide top-notch commentary on handling damage reimbursement. He can also provide detailed and accessible interpretations of the law and practical information on how residents can protect themselves and their property during hurricane season.
